

Design + Honor Award Winners Named

The 2021 AIA Colorado Design + Honor Awards Recognize the Best Colorado Architecture Projects and Firms

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

September 14, 2021 (DENVER)—AIA Colorado, the Colorado Chapter of The American Institute of Architects, announces the recipients of the 2021 Design + Honor Awards, recognizing Colorado architecture firms, projects, and architects for outstanding design.

“Our world is changing, and design has never been more important,” said AIA Colorado CEO Mike Waldinger, Hon. AIA. “These awards are an important way to show how architects are helping clients and communities navigate challenging times.”

Through jury selection, design awards were given to a selection of projects designed by Colorado architects that exemplified innovative use of materials, space, and design, as well as creatively addressed the design challenge.

In addition to the design awards, local architects and firms were recognized with Honor Awards for their breadth of work, leadership in the profession, and contributions to their communities and to Colorado. New this year, Legislative Awards were given to Colorado legislators as part of the Honor Awards.

“The policy world is also designed,” said Waldinger. “And thanks to the efforts of legislative champions, our members and firms can create a better built environment for all.”
